P R E F A C E

It is a matter of great pleasure for us to place before the world of scholars, the Critical Edition of the Yuddhakāṇḍa of the Rāmāyana of Vilmiki. This kāṇḍa has been published in 3 Fascicules, the first one was published in 1967, the second in 1969 and the third in March, 1971. We are glad to note that this kāṇḍa is completed according to schedule before March, 31st 1971.

We are thankful to the University Grants Commission for their financial assistance (two-thirds of the expenses) and the Gujarat State Government for their assistance of 20% of the expenses. And we hope that both the U.G.C. and the State Government will continue to assist the M. S. University of Baroda and this Institute till the whole of Uttarakāṇḍa and the Pratīka-Index of all the Kāṇḍas of this Critical Edition are printed and published.

I am especially thankful to Prof. Dr. P. L. Vaidya, the learned Editor of this kāṇḍa, whose versatile scholarship and experience of the Critical Editions of the Mahābhārata, the Harivaṃśa as well as the Ayodhyākāṇḍa of Rāmāyaṇa are well-known to the world of scholars. Prof. Vaidya has been, from the very beginning, our chief friend and guide in this project of the Critical Edition of the Rāmāyaṇa and even at the age of 80 with gradually failing health he had undertaken the task of the Critical Edition of Yuddhakāṇḍa which is now brought to a successful end. Unfortunately, for the last few months he has not been keeping well and hence he has been unable to append his Critical Notes to this kāṇḍa. We postponed the publication of third fascicule for about a month in the hope that Prof. Vaidya's health would improve so as to enable him to write out his Critical Notes.

As and when Prof. Vaidya is able to write the notes, they will be printed and published as an Appendix to our next Volume.

It would be interesting to note the following remarks of Prof. Vaidya (Vide, his Intro. p. XXIX)—“I believe that the original Rāmāyana consisted of three Kāṇḍas only, viz., the Ayodhyākāṇḍa, Aranyakāṇḍa and Yuddhakāṇḍa. Later the Ayodhyākāṇḍa got split up into Bāla and Ayodhyā, and Aranyakāṇḍa into Araṇya, Kūṣāṇḍhā and Sundara Kāṇḍas, making a total of six Kāṇḍas with a supplement (पदकाण्ड शेषम्)”

Some verses at the end of Sarga 14 of Bālakāṇḍa, Lahore ed., in North-western recension, are almost repeated at the end of Bālakāṇḍa and the Sargas between Sarga 16 (our Cr. ed of Bāla-kāṇḍa) and the beginning of Ayodhyā including especially the Viśvāmitra episode could have been added later. (cf. Lahore ed. Bālakāṇḍa, pp. 154 ff. Sarga 14, vv. 20 ff. with Sarga 72, vv. 9-16 p. 488 f.). The evidence of our MSS. Śrī D-1 1.1.1.13 of Bālakāṇḍa, referred to above, will demonstrate this. Thus most of the Bāla after Sarga 17 (of Critical Edition) is a later addition.

A Palm-leaf MS. No. I. 652 of Kerala University Library contains text of Yuddha and Uttara kāṇḍas only. The colophon at the end of Yuddhakāṇḍa reads as follows:—

इत्यं श्रीरामायणे आदिशब्दे श्रीरामचन्द्रो श्रीयुद्धशब्दे रामविजयशब्दे रामचन्द्रो नाम [सप्तमः] पदविस्तारः ।
श्रीरामायणं नमः । युद्धशब्दः समाप्तः ॥ इत्युद्धशब्देन रामचन्द्रो नाम्नीति । युद्धोक्तिः रामचन्द्राय विवेकीयः नमः । श्रीरामायणं समाप्तम् ॥

महा रामविजय रामचन्द्रो नमः ॥
युद्धोक्तिः रामचन्द्राय विवेकीयः नमः ॥
इत्युद्धशब्देन रामचन्द्रो नाम्नीति युद्धशब्दः समाप्तः ॥

At the end of Gorresio's edition of Yuddhakāṇḍa which follows the N. L. recension of the Rāmāyaṇa, it is printed as follows —

इत्यं रामचन्द्रो नाम्नीति । युद्धोक्तिः रामचन्द्राय विवेकीयः नमः ॥ रामचन्द्राय नमः ॥

Thus there was a tradition that Rāmāyana ended with Buddha and that Uttara was a supplement

It is not necessary here to go into details of this problem since it has been generally agreed that most of the Bāla and Uttarakandhas are later

I am also thankful to the Vice-Chancellor, M. S. University of Baroda and the Director, Oriental Institute Baroda who are taking keen interest in the progress and completion of this project

I am thankful to all the members of the staff of the Rāmāyana Department without whose sincere cooperation the work of publication would not have continued so nicely. I am especially thankful to Shri R. J. Patel Manager M. S. University of Baroda Press who has been taking special care and interest in printing of the different Volumes

INTRODUCTION

THIS first Critical Edition of the Yuddhakāṇḍa of Vālmīki's Rāmāyaṇa is based on four selected printed editions, thirty-four selected manuscripts in several different scripts, viz., the Śāradā, Newārī, Maithilī, Bengālī, Devanāgarī, Telugu, Grantha and Malayālam procured from different parts of India and abroad, Kṣemendra's Epitome called the Rāmāyaṇa Maṅgari and several commentaries from the oldest available of Udarī Varadarāja. The material available on the Rāmāyaṇa is really very vast, and the organisers and the Editor have to ignore several printed editions for which the reader is referred to Śrī N. A. Gore's Bibliography of the Rāmāyaṇa, as well as second rate or dilapidated or damaged manuscripts. All the same, the Editor desires to assure the reader that he has utilized every important work which was useful one way or another for the fixing of the text of the Yuddhakāṇḍa. We had to ignore manuscripts in Nandināgarī because they were found not to yield material not found in Telugu, and Assamese and Oriya manuscripts because they also did not differ from Bengālī. The material actually used is detailed below.

A. Printed Editions :

As stated above, there are several printed editions of the whole of Rāmāyaṇa current in different parts of India in different scripts such as Devanāgarī, Bengālī, Telugu, Grantha and Malayālam. Out of these we have selected the following four, all in Devanāgarī script. They are .

(1) Lahore Edition (L) : Yuddhakāṇḍa edited by Śrī Viśhvabandhu Shastri, Lahore, 1944, D.A.V. College Sanskrit Series, No. 19

(2) Gaspere Corresio (G) : The Rāmāyaṇa, Vol. V, Yuddhakāṇḍa, Paris, 1850.

(3) Śrīmad Vālmīki Rāmāyaṇa (according to Southern readings), Vol. II containing Sundara, Yuddha and Uttara Kāṇḍas, edited by Pandit T. R. Krishnacharya, and published by Madhya Vilasa Book Depot, Kumbakonam, second edition, 1930. (K)

(4) Vālmīki Rāmāyaṇa (with the three commentaries, Tika, Śrōmanī and Bhūṣaṇa), Vol. VI, Yuddhakāṇḍa, edited by Shastri Shrinivas Katti Mudholkar, published by the Gujarati Printing Press, Bombay, 1919. (B)

B. Manuscripts:

Out of a very large number of manuscripts of the Yuddhakāṇḍa of the Rāmāyaṇa, we have selected the following 34 manuscripts. These MSS are written, as in the case of the first five Kāṇḍas, in the principal scripts of India, namely Śāradā, Newārī, Maithilī, Bengālī, Devanāgarī, Telugu, Grantha and Malayālam. We have ignored MSS in Assamese, Oriya and Nandināgarī, because no independent and good MSS in these scripts were available to us. Of the 34 MSS, used for the Yuddhakāṇḍa 14 MSS. are common to Kāṇḍas 1-6, 4 (D<sub>1</sub> T<sub>1</sub> M<sub>1</sub>) are common to Kāṇḍas 4, 5 and 6, while 2 (V<sub>1</sub> D<sub>2</sub>) are common to Kāṇḍas 3 to 6, two MSS (B<sub>1</sub> M<sub>2</sub>) are common to Kāṇḍas 5 and 6, two (D<sub>2</sub> M<sub>3</sub>) are common to 1, 4-6, and one (D<sub>3</sub>) is common to Kāṇḍas 1, 3-6, one MS (D<sub>4</sub>) is common to the Kāṇḍas 3, 4 and 6, while one (D<sub>5</sub>) is common to Kāṇḍas 3, 5 and 6. Seven new MSS, {Ś<sub>1</sub> V<sub>2</sub> B<sub>3</sub> H<sub>4</sub> D<sub>6</sub> M<sub>4</sub>} are utilized for this Kāṇḍa. We have thus selected MSS which may be said to be fairly representative of different periods and they range from A.D. 1020 to A.D. 1841.

All the MSS. utilized for this Kāṇḍa clearly fall into two main recensions, Northern and Southern, each of which is further divided into several versions. The MSS. used can thus be classified according to their pedigree as below:—

Detailed Description of the MSS.

Ś1

Baroda, Oriental Institute, No. 14061. Undated. The MS. was purchased for the Institute by Dr. S. N. Sharma of Shrinagar. Thick unglazed paper, size 12½" × 7", Śaradā script.

The MS. is complete in seven Kaṇḍas, total number of folios for Yuddhakāṇḍa being 91. Folio nos 70-76 (i.e., the portion from 6.93 13 to 6.102.50 of our Critical Text) are missing. The folio has 18 lines to a page and about 45 to 53 letters to a line. Margins are unruled. Sargas and stanzas are not numbered. Sargas 1 to 15 of our Critical Text of Yuddha appear at the end of Snadarakāṇḍa as its part. A single daṇḍa demarcates both the halves of the stanza. Colophons, bearing significant Sarga names, are generally daubed over with red chalk or yellow powder. Very few marginal notes. Corrections are few, and they are pr. m. Stanzas are at times omitted. Transpositions of stanzas are occasionally noticed. The MS. is fairly old. Writing fairly legible and correct. Paratavarna instead of anusvara is generally used. No prāṣṭhamātrās are noticed. The MS. seems to have been written by two scribes. Though the Kāṇḍa is not dated, it seems to be a late exemplar.

The MS. represents the NW version.

The following star-passages are found exclusively in this MS, viz., 3055, 3661 and 3663 (3).

Ś<sub>1</sub>

New Delhi, in private possession of Dr. Lokesh Chandra, Director, International Academy of Indian Culture. Unnumbered. Dated Samvat 58 (A.D. 1885). Written on paper, size 13 5" x 7.2". Śāradā script.

The MS. is complete in seven Kāṇḍas. As it was obtained very recently, the MS. has been utilized from Sarga 11 of the Critical Text of Yuddhakāṇḍa. The total number of folios for Yuddhakāṇḍa is 125. The folio has 15 lines to a page and about 50 letters to a line. Margins are unruled. Stanzas are not numbered, while Sargas are numbered. The total number of Sargas of Yuddhakāṇḍa is 112. Sargas 1-15 of our Critical Text are relegated, as in Ś<sub>1</sub>, to Sundara in this MS. There is no device used to mark the Ślokaśrīdhā or even a Śloka. Colophons are coloured red and give suitable Sarga names. No marginalia noticed. Corrections are very few and are found pr. m. Omissions of stanzas are noticed in some places. A number of stanzas are transposed. The MS. is old, some folios being moth eaten. Hand-writing is nice, with few errors. The scribe writes क as क, for instance, विने क as विने क. The rules of Samdhi are generally observed. No prāṣṭhamātrās are noticed. The whole MS. is written by a single hand, only the post-colophon entry, giving the genealogy of the scribe given at the end of Uttarakāṇḍa appears to have been written by another person.

The post-colophon entry at the end Uttarakāṇḍa seems to give the date of the entire MS as follows

ॐ श्रीगुरुभक्त १ ५८ भा. सुदि नवम्यां शुभे ॥

This probably refers to the Saptarṣi Samvat 58 which is equivalent to A.D. 1885.

The MS. represents the NW version.

No exclusive star-passages are found in this MS.

The question of sudden exuberance of the poetic mind of the scribe, or of the change of his exemplar may be the reason for it, but it cannot be treated exhaustively here.

TESTIMONIA

(A) The Commentaries.

There are a number of commentaries available on the text of the Rāmāyana, and its various recensions and versions. The number of commentaries on the text of S recension is large and range from Uḍāri Varadarāja (earlier than A.D. 1250), Rāṇḍanṇa (14th century), Mahāśvaraśrītha (A.D. 1550), Govindarāja (A.D. 1600), Katakayogendra (A.D. 1650), and Nāgeśa Bhaṭṭa (A.D. 1700).

All these commentaries on S recension have been fully used and variant readings as well as pathantara, recorded in them are noted in our Critical Apparatus. All these six commentators hail from South India and comment on the text of Southern recension of the Rāmāyana. The Bengali commentator (date ?) Lokanātha Cakravartī has however commented upon the Bengali version of the Rāmāyana. He very often refers to Vṛmlabodha and Sarvajña Narayana (both between A.D. 1100 and 1300) as the old commentators of both the Rāmāyaṇa and the Mahābhārata, and quotes from their commentaries on the Rāmāyana. These commentaries however are not yet traced anywhere.

(B) Epitomes

Kṛṣṇamendra the Kāśmīrian poet of circa A.D. 1046 composed among other works an epitome of Valmiki's Rāmāyana in about 6200 stanzas. Of these some 1400 stanzas summarise the portion of the Yuddhakāṇḍa of Valmiki's work as given in our Critical Text. It is clear that Kṛṣṇamendra had before him the NW version of the Rāmāyana as can be proved from a lack of reference to the Ādityakāyaśloka which, thus constitutes a feature of the S recension. The main episodes of the Yuddhakāṇḍa all figure in Kṛṣṇamendra's Epitome. The Editor of the Yuddhakāṇḍa has utilized this Epitome to corroborate the correspondence of incidents only and not for the wording of the Critical Text.

Among other items under the head of Testimonia we may mention the Rāmopākhyāna of the Mahābhārata (Mbh. 3. 258-275) which in my opinion is the oldest and ungarbed version of the Rāma episode as well as other works of bardic literature such as the Vigna Agni and Padma Purāṇas.

It will be seen from the above description of the MSS., commentaries and Epitomes that I have ransacked and selected almost every available MS. which I thought would help me to constitute a Critical Text. Almost each and every MS. used has some special feature of its own and all of them, taken together go to make up the Ur text as far as the available stock of MSS. can take us back. The Critical Apparatus may appear somewhat loaded as a result of my selection of MSS. but I think it was necessary in the interest of scholarship.

Recensions and Versions

The above material roughly falls into two major groups of recensions: viz. Northern and Southern. Some MSS. however particularly of the Devanagari group are divided among themselves some sharing characteristics of Northern recension and others of Southern recension. The use of N and S thus in the case of these MSS. is not quite accurate but the Editor found himself helpless in classifying them into a definite recension. Similarly a Malayalam MS. Ms. was found to share characteristic of N recension in addition to its own specialities. MSS. of this type may rather be designated as mixed versions which may have their originals contaminated.

The Northern group of MSS. includes those in Śāradā, Newārī or Nepālī, Bengālī and Devanagari scripts. The Southern group contains MSS. in Devanagari, Telugu, Grantha and Malayalam scripts—Ms. belongs to a special group. It is a mixed version sharing the characteristics of Newārī and Bengālī on the one hand and of Telugu and Grantha versions on the other. Over and above these traits this MS. has 80 star passages peculiar or exclusive to itself. The pedigree of MSS. on page III makes the classification into recensions and versions quite clear.

Text constitution

Although the principles of text constitution of the Rāmāyana have been indicated in the introductions to all the previous bandas I should like to restate them here for ready reference. The main principle on which the constitution of our Critical Text is based is that there should be a full agreement in a balance between all recensions and versions. Whatever extra matter is noticed in MSS. is not considered to be authentic or belonging to the oldest core of the text. This principle has resulted in giving in our edition a very large number of star passages totalling 3711 with 7143 lines. In other words while our Critical Text consists of 4431 units of stanzas (a few three-lined and fewer still one-lined) the number of star-passages for this text is 3711 with 7143 lines, out of which 769 are substitute passages. It means that in a Critical Text of 4435 stanzas of the Yuddhakāṇḍa, as many as 2942 passages are inserted by a generation of bards during the text-transmission through centuries. Besides, there are 76 longer passages relegated to App. I containing 7310 lines. Further, individual MSS. have star-passages which are exclusive to them. The number of such exclusive star-passages is 483, there being only 4 MSS., viz. Śr Dīe D11 and D12 which do not contain a single exclusive star-passage. On the contrary, D12 has 93 passages and M1 80. I have given the above details just to show how difficult the task of the editor was in fixing his Critical Text of the Kāṇḍa.

The Starting Point of Yuddhakāṇḍa :

We have adopted the starting point of the Yuddhakāṇḍa as in Southern recension. The first 15 Sargas in the Critical Edition are found as a concluding part of the Sundarakāṇḍa in the Northern recension. In fact, the division of MSS. into N and S recensions of Yuddhakāṇḍa is determined on the ground whether the first 15 Sargas of our Critical Text figure in Sundara or Yuddha Kāṇḍas. Considering the nature of these 15 Sargas, it may be stated that they belong to a topic dealing with the preparation of waging war by Rāma with Ravana. To borrow the analogy of the parvan division of the Mahābhārata, these 15 Sargas correspond to the Udyogaparvan of that Epic. If the reader cares to examine the Critical Apparatus of the Yuddhakāṇḍa, particularly the records under colophons, he will be surprised to find that that particular Sarga, according to that MS., belonged to Udyoga as against Lankākāṇḍa or Yuddhakāṇḍa. Now, Udyoga or preparation for a war-fare can be more appropriately considered as a part of Yuddhakāṇḍa rather than that of Sundarakāṇḍa, which, in my opinion, is a part of Aranyakāṇḍa. For, I believe that the original Rāmāyana consisted of three Kāṇḍas only, viz. the Ayodhyākāṇḍa, Aranyakāṇḍa and Yuddhakāṇḍa. Later the Ayodhyākāṇḍa got split up into Bala and Ayodhyā, and Aranyakāṇḍa into Aranya, Kiskindhā and Sundara Kāṇḍas, making a total of six Kāṇḍas with a supplement (वृद्धसर्गसोत्रम्). So, originally these 15 Sargas must have belonged to Yuddhakāṇḍa. It may be noted here that B1 of N recension begins Yuddhakāṇḍa with Sarga 13 and D1 with Sarga 6 of the Critical text, showing a sort of wavering in the mind of copyists of these MSS.

Bardic Poetry and Its Characteristics :

It is my firm belief that the Rāmāyana the Mahābhārata and the Purāṇas form a class of literature by themselves, and should be styled as Bardic literature. The main characteristic of this literature is that originally it consisted of small songs, ballads and even stray verses called Gāthā garāḥitā and continued to be sung by traditional bards and transmitted by them to succeeding generation by oral tradition. These songs or ballads later developed into Epics, Purāṇas and early Kavyas. Further its contents had a very fluid wording, emphasis being laid on contents rather than on expression or words. These expressions or words were capable of being substituted by different expressions provided the meaning remained the same. Further, these original songs were composed in the form of a verse which also was equally fluid and simple to compose and remember. There is a very large number of standard verse-fillers with which the bard is to equip himself. These songs or ballads were also capable of being expanded or even abridged according to the interest the audience shows in the bard's recitation. The extent of an episode becomes shorter or longer on account of these circumstances, and both shorter and longer versions get recorded at the stage of their being

* This topic, with special reference to English and continental Literature has been discussed by (1) N. K. and H. M. CHADWICK in The Growth of Literature, Vols. I-III, (2) N. K. SIDDHANTA in his Heroic Age of India (1929), (3) C. M. BOWRA in his Heroic Poetry, (4) M. PARRAY in L'Épique traditionnelle dans l'Inde (Paris 1928), (5) A. B. LORD in The Singer of Tales (1960), (6) G. S. KIRK in The Songs of Homer (1962), (7) and with special reference to Vālmīki's Rāmāyana by NABANEETA SEN in his article "Comparative Studies in Oral Epic Poetry" in AOS, Vol. 86, October-December 1966.

bard provided the contents of his narrative or the theme remained the same and versification smooth. The metres as pointed out above, used in the epic, are easy to admit synonymous words of the same metrical quality. By way of illustration I pick up a few such words महातेजा, महाराज-महाराज, महामाय महामाग, महाबाहु-महाबाहो, महावीर्य-महावीर्य, महासत्व-महासत्त्व (all suited for the first half of Anuṣṭubh) and महातपा, महाबल महाबल, महापशा, महाद्युति-महाद्युते, महामति-महामते (suitable for the second half of Anuṣṭubh). The reader will meet hundreds of instances making use of these and similar expressions. I need not therefore emphasize the promiscuous use of such expressions in the Epics. Besides, there is a group of expressions which may be termed as verse fillers, च, वै, हु, हि, ह, का, but the group is not restricted to these expletives: there are other expressions like रावन्, नृप-नृप, वीर-वीर, प्रभु-विभु, प्रभो-विभो, भद्रं त, भारत, वीर्य जनेश्वर-जनेश्वर, नरेश्वर-नरेश्वर, नराधिप नराधिप, वृद्धसत्त्व, कुलवन्दन, यदुल-यदुल, यदुलसत्त्व, भरतर्षभ, क्षत्रियर्षभ for the Anuṣṭubh metre and वरेन्द्रसूते, वरेन्द्रपुत्र, जनेन्द्रसूते, जनेन्द्रपुत्र for the Tristubh metre. It should be noted that such verse filling expressions could be expanded to the full length of a pada e.g. यशोदानन्दवर्धन-न, वीर्यदानन्दवर्धन न, शत्रोश्च संहसत. I have in view a set of some funny expressions like रावणस्य महासत्त्व & दशरथस्य महामन used as verse-fillers where the word महासत्त्व has to be used ironically in the case of Ravana and normally in the case of Rama. When therefore varying traditions of bards reach the stage of writing one tradition of MSS. uses one and the other its counterpart.

There are a few other devices which the bard has to resort to in his recitation. He cannot strictly follow the rules of grammar and syntax because he is primarily to look to versification. He, therefore, uses Paramanypada for Atmanepada of verbs and vice versa: he drops augment a of the past tense: he uses nominative and accusative plural forms of feminine nouns promiscuously: he may not strictly observe rules of Sandhi and may even use expletives like च, हु, हि unnecessarily to avoid hiatus: he may even leave sentence, incomplete: he may not use correctly active and passive constructions and may commit the flaw of anacoluthon. These and other similar features of epic poetry go to prove that texts transmitted by oral tradition have a wide variation in their wording. This is the main reason why epics and puranas abound in various readings: transpositions of phrases and substitutions or parallel versions. The bards in their enthusiasm, particularly when their audience is appreciative or otherwise, go on expanding or shortening descriptions of events by filling in details which may happen to be omitted in other versions. The additional passages and episodes are not peculiar to any particular recension, but are found in all recensions and versions. The fluidity of readings of individual words, expressions, incidents, transpositions, all go to indicate that such oral traditions were more than one. I need not repeat that the traditional extent of the text of Yuddhakanda has only 5760 stanzas while my constituted Critical Text contains only 4435 stanzas. The total number of star passages included in the Critical Apparatus is over 3700 with more than 7000 lines or 3500 stanzas and that of passages relegated to App. I is 76 with 7335 lines equal to 3668 stanzas.

The Rāmopakhyaṇa and the Rāmāyana

Before finishing my Introduction to the Yuddhakanda, the last Kāṇḍa of the real and original Rāmāyana, I should like to refer to a point not touched by my predecessors. The point refers to the question of the relative chronology of the Rāmopakhyaṇa as found in the Mbh. 3.258-273 of the Critical Edition and the Rāmāyana in its Critical Edition now before the reader for the first time. The Rāmopakhyaṇa in the Critical Edition contains 18 adhyāyas and 724 stanzas or 1446 lines. It narrates the story of Rama upto his coronation only i.e. upto the end of the Yuddhakanda of the Rāmāyana. The first three stanzas of the Rāmopakhyaṇa contain a sort of summary of the Akhyaṇa and run as follows:

प्राप्तमप्रतिमं दुःखं रामेन भरतर्षभ ।
रक्षस्य आरवी तस्य हृत्वा भवत्वा वहीयता ॥
साधुमादाहस्येद्गण राक्षसेन विद्रुमया ।
सावासायाच वरसा हवा वृद्धं ज्ञायुषम् ।
प्रजापदस्य सा राम मुदीर्यवत्समधिग ।
वचनां सेव्यं सगुह्यं दग्ध्वा वृद्धं तिष्ठे श्री ॥

✓ The story in the Mbh. is narrated by the sage Mārkanḍeya to Yudhiṣṭhira at a time when Draupadī was ferociously abducted by Jayadratha, and was recovered by Bhīma. When Yudhiṣṭhira asks Mārkanḍeya whether there was any unfortunate person like him who had lost his kingdom and wife, Mārkanḍeya narrates to him an old episode of Rāma who had lost both his kingdom and wife while he was, like him, in exile for a period of fourteen years. It thus appears that the narration of Rāmopākhyāna to Yudhiṣṭhira by the sage was quite appropriate to the occasion. There are no traces to suggest that the episode could be an interpolation in the Mbh. Being thus a genuine part of the Mahābhārata, it is much older than the poem of Valmiki, and being a part of an Itihāsa, it is much more trustworthy than a Kāvya. Scholars from Weber and Jacobs down to the late Dr. Sukthankar have held different views about the relative antiquity of the Rāmopākhyāna and the Rāmāyaṇa, some holding that the former is an abridgement of the Rāmāyaṇa and consequently later than the Rāmāyaṇa. The question, therefore, of the relative chronology requires a fresh examination so as to settle it finally. My own considered view is that the Rāmopākhyāna is centuries older than the Rāmāyaṇa and being a part of the Itihāsa has stated the facts, while the Rāmāyaṇa being a Kāvya is much later than the Rāmopākhyāna, and has enlarged, modified and embellished the narrative as it occurs in the Rāmopākhyāna. It must be borne in mind that an abridgement of a work is more faithful to its original than an enlargement of the same. I note below a few interesting points which are peculiar to the Rāmopākhyāna, but not referred to or differently referred to in the Rāmāyaṇa. I shall also point out the elements in the Ramakathā which are innovations of Valmiki so that the reader might solve the question for himself.

✧ 1. The Rāmopākhyāna makes no mention of Viśvāmitra, who, according to Bālakāṇḍa of the Rāmāyaṇa, took away young Rāma and Lakṣmana and gave them training in missiles; the marriage of Sitā with Rāma did not take place in the presence of Viśvāmitra, but was arranged by Tvaṣṭi. In the Rāmāyaṇa, on the other hand, Viśvāmitra took young Rāma and Lakṣmana, trained them in missiles, took them to Janaka's court, where after breaking of Śiva's bow, Rāma was married to Sitā. It is thus clear that the entire episode of Viśvāmitra was an innovation of the poet Valmiki and introduced by him in the older and similar Rāmopākhyāna.

✧ 2. In the Rāmopākhyāna, there is no reference to the episode of Ahalyā and her restoration to life at the touch of Rāma's feet. This episode also in the Rāmāyaṇa is an innovation of Valmiki.

✓ 3. The Rāmopākhyāna mentions three times an old Rākṣasa minister of Rāvāṇa, Avindhya by name, who is well disposed towards Rāma. He once consoles Sitā by giving her news about the well being of Rāma and Lakṣmana and assuring her that they would soon release her from detention in Rāvāṇa's custody, second time he prevents Rāvāṇa from killing Sitā by pointing to him that a crowned king like Rāvāṇa should not kill a woman, already in imprisonment; and third time, he brought Sitā to Rāma after Rāvāṇa's death. Rāma is said to have rewarded him for his good offices after his coronation for the part he played in the recovery of Sitā. Tvaṣṭi is mentioned in both the Rāmopākhyāna and the Rāmāyaṇa. Avindhya is thus ignored in the Rāmāyaṇa as Valmiki thought him to be not so important.

✧ 4. In Rāmopākhyāna, Kumbhakarṇa is killed by Lakṣmana (Mbh. 3.271.11-12), while in the Rāmāyaṇa he is killed by Rāma (R. 6.55).

✓ 5. In the Rāmopākhyāna, there is no reference to Hanumat bringing the mount Droṇaka with its medicinal plants to revive Lakṣmana hit by Indrajit's missile. The revival of Lakṣmana was effected in the Rāmopākhyāna by Sugriva with the help of plants available near at hand. The entire incident of Droṇaka and its medicinal plants is an innovation introduced by Valmiki.

6. In the Rāmopākhyāna, Kubera sends magic water to Rāma to enable him to see invisible demons and other objects. Valmiki does not mention the item of magic water at all.

7. In the Rāmopākhyāna, Avindhya brings Sitā to Rāma's camp after Rāvāṇa was killed. In the Rāmāyaṇa, Rāma sends Hanumat for bringing Sitā to him from Rāvāṇa's palace. When she is brought to Rāma's presence, Rāma tells her that she is free to go anywhere. The repudiation of Sitā is couched in similar fashion in both works.

8. In the Rāmopākhyāna, there is no reference to Sitā proving her chastity by entering into fire. This ordeal of Sitā by throwing herself into fire is a pure innovation of Vālmīki. In the Rāmopākhyāna it is stated that after hearing the words of her repudiation by Rāma in terms:

सुहृत्तामसुहृता वाप्यहं ह्यमद्य मेयिस्ति ।
नोस्तद्वि परिमोक्षाय यावत्कीर्णं हविर्वेशा ॥

Mbh. 3.275.13

On hearing these words, Sitā fell down fainted, Lakṣmana and monkeys were struck dumb, when god Brahmā, followed by several gods like Indra, Agni, Vāyu, Kubera, the seven sages and Daśaratha, appears on the scene. Then Sitā got up and said to Rāma:

राजपुत्र न ते कोपं करोमि विविधा हि मे ।
गतिः स्त्रीणां नराणां च वायु चेदं यथो मम ॥
अन्तश्चरति ब्रूयतां सारथिषा सदागतिः ।
स मे विमुक्तुं ब्रान्धन्वदि पारं वारम्भहम् ॥

Mbh. 3.275.22-23

Upon this utterance, it is Vāyu,—I ask the reader to note that it was not Agni as in the Rāmāyana—who said:

भो भो राघव सर्वं वै वायुस्मि सदागतिः ।
अवाप्य मेयिस्ति राजन्कवन्त सह भार्यया ॥

Mbh. 3.275.26

After Vāyu, other gods present such as Agni, Varuṇa, Brahmā, all said in one voice:

नात्र शङ्का त्वया सार्या प्रीत्येतां महापुते ।

Mbh. 3.275.34

Then Daśaratha also tells Rāma to go to Ayodhyā with Sitā to take charge of his kingdom. Rāma then agreed, accepted Sitā and went to Ayodhyā in the Puṣpaka Vamāna.

I have given above the account as to how Sitā proved her chastity according to the Rāmopākhyāna. Now I ask the reader to compare the above account and contrast it with that in the Rāmāyana found in Sargas 101-106 of the Yuddhakāṇḍa in the Critical Edition. According to the Rāmāyana, it is Rāma who asks Hanumat to go to Rāvana's palace and inform Sitā that Rāma had killed Rāvana, and Vibhīṣana is put on the throne of Lanka. Sitā then told Hanumat that she would like to see Rāma. Rāma then asked Vibhīṣana to bring Sitā to him bathed and decked. She was brought to Rāma in a palanquin. When she approached Rāma, he was filled with joy—because he won the victory over Rāvana, depression—because Rāvana insulted him by Sitā's abduction, and anger—because Sitā might not have remained chaste in Rāvana's house. When Sitā approached Rāma and addressed him with the usual term Āryaputra, Rāma said to her:

यत्कर्मण्यं मनुष्येण धर्मेण परिमार्जता ।
तत्कृतं सकलं सीते शत्रुहृत्तादमर्षणात् ॥ R. 6.103.13
विदित्वास्तु भद्रं ते योऽयं रजपरिधमः ।
स सीतेः सुहृदां परितोऽहं स्वदर्शं मया कृतः ॥
रक्षता तु मया वृत्तमवसादं च सर्वथा ।
प्रणयात्सर्वसमर्थस्य न्यद्रं च परिमार्जता ॥
प्रातश्चरिष्वभ्यर्चयामि प्रविभुले स्थिता ।
दीपो मेघातुरस्येव प्रतिवृत्तास्ति मे दम् ॥
मह्यस्तु शम्भुशला यथेष्टं ज्वलामिने ।
एता ददा दिशो भद्रे कार्यमस्ति न मे खया ॥

R. 6.103.15-18

On hearing this repudiation by Rāma Sita told him that he was doing injustice to her and argued :

त्वया तु दशदंष्ट्रं श्रोयमेवानुवर्तता ।
 रुद्रनेत्रं मनुष्येण स्त्रीवशमेव पुरस्कृतम् ॥
 अपदशेन जनकाशौचवर्जितमुपायकात् ।
 मम वृत्तं च दृष्ट्वा यद् त्वं न पुरस्कृतम् ॥
 न प्रमाणीकृतं दासिपत्न्ये बालेन पीडितं ।
 मम भक्तिश्च शीलं च सर्वं तं दृष्ट्वा कृतम् ॥

R 6 104 14-16

So saying Sita made up her mind to end her life by entering into burning fire in the presence of Rāma and other members of the gathering and told Lakṣmaṇa

चिता मे कुरु सौमित्रे व्यहनसाह्यं श्रेयसम् ।
 मिथ्यापवस्त्रैश्च दृष्ट्वा गच्छ क्षितिमुत्तमाम् ॥
 कप्रीतस्तं भुविर्भूतस्तथा जनसंसदि ।
 वा श्रुत्वा मे सतिर्मेऽपि प्रवेक्ष्ये हृदयवादनम् ॥

R 6 104 18-19

Lakṣmaṇa then looked up to Rāma and gathering from his face his consent to the proposal of Sita he prepared a burning pile. Sita approached the pile and said

यथा मे हृदयं नित्यं नापसर्पति रावणम् ।
 तथा लोकस्य साक्षी मा सर्वत्र पातु रावक ॥

R 6 104 24

So saying Sita approached the fire regardless of her life. Then all gods appeared on the scene and appealed to Rāma not to be so indifferent to Sita who was throwing herself into the fire. The gods also pointed to Rāma that he was the lord of all gods, Viṣṇu incarnate. Rāma thereupon told gods that had gathered that he considered himself to be a human being, the son of Daśaratha.

भ्रातृमानं भ्रातुषु मयि राम इतरथा ममम् ।

R 6 105 10

Just at this juncture the god of fire in person jumped up from the burning pile with Sita on his lap, gave her to Rāma and said

विशुद्धमात्रां निष्पावां प्रतिपृच्छीष्व रावण ।
 न किञ्चिद्विनाशः पश्यमाहापयामि ते ।

R 6 106 9

To this Rāma responded

अत्रापि त्रिषु लोकेषु स्त्रीयां पावनमस्ति ।
 दीर्घकालोचितं यत्र रावणस्य पुरे शुभा ॥
 बालिनः सप्त कामदया रामो दशरथात्मजः ।
 इति यद्यनितं मां सम्पद्ये जायसीमविशेषं हि ॥
 सत्यवद्वदया भक्त्या सचित्तपरिरक्षिणीम् ।
 अदम्यवदाम्बुजानि मैत्रिणीं जनकालम्बकाम् ॥
 प्रत्यर्थां तु लोकांश्च यथासा मलयसमम् ।
 उदेते चापि वेदेहीं प्रविशन्तीं दृष्ट्वात्मनम् ॥

R 6 106 11-14

It is now clear from the above narration that Valmiki introduced this episode of Sita's purification by fire against the narration in the Rāmopākhyāna where Vāyu is said to be the first to announce the purity of Sita. Whether Sita actually threw herself into the fire or was approaching (प्रविशन्ती) the burning fire when personified Agni caught her and brought her to Rāma, is still a moot question, because once we get the text to say इतिरेव दृष्ट्वात्मनम् and न उदेते चापि वेदेहीं प्रविशन्तीं दृष्ट्वात्मनम्. In any case, the poet Valmiki introduced in his epic poem an innovation of Sita's test by fire against the epic and historical background of Vayu assuring Rama of Sita's purity. This innovation, among others, is thus the most striking innovation made by Valmiki when he decided to handle an old epic theme and gave it the shape of a poem the first of its kind, an Ādikāvya. We are not so much interested in the fact whether Sita threw herself into the fire, came out unhurt, and was presented to Rama by fire god because we believe that Vayu appearing on the scene and declaring Sita's purity and Agni bringing Sita to Rama and presenting her to him unhurt or brighter are facts equally super-natural to us. We are, therefore, concerned more with changes or innovations introduced by the poet Valmiki in his poem against a historical statement made in the Ramopakhyana of the Mahabharata.

The above story of Rama as found in the Ramopakhyana of the Mahabharata traditionally known as the Itihāsa and the same in Valmiki's Ramayana traditionally known as Ādikāvya the first poem deserves some further general considerations. Itihāsa and Puranas in Indian literature and poetas like Valmiki's Ramayana are all mixed up with historical grains and myths. The Ramopakhyana which is a part and parcel of a work called Itihāsa, requires Vayu personified to announce the purity and chastity of Sita. Valmiki however shows greater height of imagination in putting Vayu in the bad ground and invent the fire ordeal to prove Sita's purity because fire is visible while Vayu is invisible. The incident as narrated in the Itihāsa looks insipid against the fire-ordeal which can catch the public mind more quickly. Has not thus Valmiki modified the statement made in the Itihāsa to make his poem more impressive than the insipid record in Itihāsa? In this context I may bring to the reader's notice a recent article in Marathi by Mm. Dr. V. V. VIRASHI which appeared in the Journal Nana Bharata for July 1970 (the original article in English by him may soon appear in some research journal) in which Dr. VIRASHI studies the question of the episode known as Parjatabharana as it figures in the Critical Text of Harivamsa and as modified by a poet of a later date King Sarvasena (A.D. 330-355) of the Vikramaditya dynasty. The oldest form of the episode of Parjatabharana is found in the Ubb. 7.10.22-23 and runs as follows:

वैनतेय समारदा यासिदवामराजवीम् ।
महद्भयवशाद्दि पारिवातमुपावयम् ॥
तच्च मण्डितमन्दाको जलतस्थ पताकम् ।
राज्ञः चापवशित कलिहस्तोनेन न शुश्रुम् ॥

This very episode figures in Harivamsa (92.63-67) in its Critical Edition as follows:

स ददमि महापादुरादीन् पापवस्त्र द ।
मृष्यमन्त्रपितृ द्वे पारिवात महादुग्धम् ॥
वरापायातोवपामास विष्णुत सरमेवदि ।
सोऽवश्यमस्यभामा च दिशमन्तरां गच्छ ॥
...
ध्रुवा उ ददातस्तु वसो वृत्तस्य तच्छदा ।
मनुमेने महाशत्रु कृतार्थेति पावनीम् ॥

The same episode figures in Hemendra's Bharata Manjari as follows:

त ददुः सवना दशमर्षि मायय मयम् ।
समुत्पद्य जहातां तन्मामन्त्र दृग्ददा ॥

Now this plain story of Parjatabharana assumes altogether a different form in King Sarvasena's Prakrit poem Harivamsa (A.D. 330-355) where the element of jealousy between Rohini and Satyabhama is introduced for the first time as well as a full fledged battle between Indra and Agni over this tree. Here also a historical statement in the Harivamsa is given a new twist. Anandavardhana in his Dhvanyaloka III has noted it is fact in the following form:

हरिहृतवसापाशो कथंचिद्वाननुगुणं स्थितिं स्वयया पुनरुद्भव्य मसीरातोविकल्पोपको विषय मया दान्दिगमरभयेषु
यदा च सर्वत्रविरचित हरिविज्ञये ।

On the above passage Abhinavagupta in Locana remarks

इतिचिन्ते कालाहुनपाद्वेन परिचातदस्य निरूपितम् इतिहासेष्वप्यहमपि ।

It is thus clear that King Sarvasena the author of the Prakrit poem (now lost or not yet traced) narrated the story of Parjataharana as subordinate to his appeasing Satyabhama who was jealous of Ruhmini whom Kṛṣṇa gave the parijata flower, though there is no reference to such an event in the Itihāsa i.e. Mahābhārata. This clue has since the days of King Sarvasena, been utilised by over a dozen poets in Sanskrit literature down to 17th century. Our poet Valmiki has done a similar thing in his epic poem Rāmāyana, even though he took the main story of Rama from the Itihāsa, i.e. the Rāmopākhyāna of the Mahābhārata.

We have not yet studied the question how myths in literature grow. Valmiki picked the main theme of the Rāmāyana for his epic poem from the Mahābhārata and gave a new turn by introducing new features like Viśvāmitra episode, the bringing of Dronasena by Hanumat, and the fire-ordeal of Sītā following the dictum कृपादिर्देहोऽनुत्तमः i.e., the poet should introduce supernatural elements towards the concluding part of his poem or play. The coming out of Sītā from the burning fire is that miraculous event now perpetuated in Indian literature.

I may briefly point out here that like the fire ordeal of the Rāmāyana and assuaging the jealousy of co-wives as in the Parjataharana, there are several such episodes like the story of Syamantaka gem which Prasena discovered on the foreshore at a time when Dvaraka was founded. This discovery of Syamantaka in another later version was said to be a present to Prasena by the sun god. This gem has gathered several myths around it including that of not looking at the moon on the fourth day of Bhādrapada though the Critical Text of Harivaṃśa makes no reference to it and narrates the simple fact that Prasena discovered the gem on the fore-shore of Dvaraka. The narration of the life of Kṛṣṇa in Harivaṃśa is already full of a number of myths but it is to be noted that these myths are amplified in the Bhāgavata Purāṇa and Rāmāyaṇa.

I have already digressed from my main point, viz. Valmiki introduced for the first time the episode of Sītā's fire-ordeal in his poem Rāmāyana though the older narrative makes no reference to it. Sītā on that account rose in estimation of popular mind as having undergone through the most miraculous form of expiation for her stay in Ravana's house. This is the greatest feat and height of imagination of the poetic genius of Valmiki.

I should not close this Introduction of the Yuddhakāṇḍa without recording my grateful and sincere thanks to those persons who entrusted this work to me and who actively helped me in my editorial task from beginning to end during a long period of nine years. In fact I feel very much over whelmed by their kindness when on conclusion of my labour I find how my role has been insignificant compared with an enormous quantity of quality labour these persons bestowed upon the production of this volume of the Yuddhakāṇḍa. It is obviously difficult for me to mention all names but I am all along conscious of their kind help to me.

I should like to record in the first place my grateful thanks to Dr. Shrimati Hansaben Mehta, the first Vice-Chancellor of the Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda as Chairman of the Editorial Board for the project of the Critical Edition of the Rāmāyana, who, without any acquaintance accepted my name first for the membership of the Board and then for the editorship of two of the bigger kāṇḍas of the Rāmāyana viz., the Ayodhyākāṇḍa and the Yuddhakāṇḍa, on the recommendation of my friend, the late Professor Govindlal H. Bhatt the first General Editor of this project. After the sad and rather untimely demise of Professor Bhatt his successor, Dr. U. P. Suman has also been equally kind to me, and advised me and sought my advice in all my and his difficulties in the editorial task. My heartfelt thanks go to Dr. U. P. Suman. For the preparation of the constituted text of the Ayodhyākāṇḍa, I spent days and months at Baroda, but for the Yuddhakāṇḍa, I could not do so, on account of my other assignment, as the General Editorship of the Mahābhārata at the Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute, Poona. The late Professor BHATT then arranged, with the consent of his authorities, to send the collation-sheets to Poona to suit my convenience. The work of consulting the text of the Yuddhakāṇḍa was thus done in my spare time and completed in December 1964 and it may be out by March 1971. During this process of editorial task and printing, difficulties arose which had to be settled by correspondence. Dr. U. P. SHAN's help to me in this regard is great and valuable, and I must record my special thanks to him for his untiring energy. Dr. U. P. SHAN was ably assisted by Shri M. R. NAMBIYAR, the Assistant Editor, by Shri H. T. DESAI for sometime as well as by messrs Dr. B. N. BHATT, NIRGODKAR and others. Obviously, I must say once more, that the Critical Edition of a text like the Rāmāyana is not the work of an individual but of a team, and the successful completion of it depends upon the staff, prepared to give its best to the General Editor. I consider myself lucky in having a staff which rendered my work easy and light. I, therefore, like to record my grateful thanks to them individually and collectively. Lastly, I must not miss to record my best thanks to the staff of the University Press who have spared no pains to make the printing of this volume excellent in their usual way. Finally, I cannot close this Introduction without recording my humble gratitude to God Almighty who spared me to my eightieth year to complete this job.

☞ In Śrī N Vāṇ Dēvī's Sargas 1-15 form part of the Sundarakāṇḍa. In these MSS the Yoddhakāṇḍa begins with Sarga 16.

In V<sub>4</sub> Sargas 1-15 are not found. The MS begins with Sarga 16.

$V_2$  is a new MS wherein Sargas 1-25 are not found. The variants recorded as of  $V_2$  for Sargas 1-15 are from a different MS (viz  $V_2$  of the Sundara) in which the Sundarakanda incorporates these fifteen Sargas and then comes to an end.

For Sargas 1-15 B<sub>1</sub> and B<sub>2</sub> are the same as B<sub>1</sub> and B<sub>2</sub> respy of the Sundara. However from Sarga 16 onwards B<sub>1</sub> and B<sub>2</sub> are different MSS in D<sub>1</sub> and D<sub>4</sub> Sargas 1-31 belong to the Sendarakanda. As such D<sub>4</sub> begins the Yuddha-kanda with Sarga 32. But in D<sub>1</sub> the Yuddha-kanda begins with Sarga 16 (and not with Sarga 32). Consequently Sargas 16-31 are duplicated in it (note in Sarga 16).

In Ds the Yuddhakandā begins with Sarga 6 as Sargas 1-5 therein belong to the Sundarā

Da begins with श्रीगणेशाय नमः । हरि ॐ ।

De begins with श्रीमते रामादुजय नमः and then has some introductory stanzas beginning with स जगदि हृद्यपारिजितं कौमल्यादुदयनदत्ते रामः etc

$D_1$  begins with  $a^2$

Dr begins with पेयुचिदुल्लेखेसु भुषा इनुमदो वाम्य
मिदमारम्य दुदकांनारम ठप्यते

Das begins with युद्धकाण्डविधिपदे ४१ श्रीगणेशाय नमः / and then uses the पारायणविधि of the Yuddhakanda.

Das begins with श्रीसुवीरो जयति

Te begins with श्रीरामाय नमः । हरे ॐ, Te with श्रीगुरुभ्यो नमः , Te with श्रीइश्वरीय नमः । अविग्रमस्तु शुभमस्तु युद्धकाण्ड ।

G<sub>1</sub> begins with हरि ॐ शुभमस्तु युद्धकाण्ड, G<sub>2</sub> with युद्धकाण्ड, G<sub>3</sub> with ॐ हरि ॐ शुभमस्तु। श्रीगुरुभ्यो नमः। युद्धकाण्ड।
